Owing, however, to his having allowed his own personal account on Samarai books to assume very large proportions, and, in view of a transaction, whereby he purchased a Gramophone, omitting to charge same up to himself, and, having sold the instrument, retained the portion of the proceeds obtained, Mr. Greenwood decided that he had not sufficient confidence in him to confirm the appointment to Kavieng. Furthermore, in the interim Cooper's position at Samarai has been filled by the promotion of Shaw to the position of Accountant. Bearing in mind Cooper's length of service
